Excellent Xmas Concert Held At United Church

A large number of children and their parents attended the Sunday School Christmas Tree held last Thursday evening in the United Church. Mr. D.A. McMurray was a very able Master of Ceremonies and Mrs. W. Abell acted as accompanist for the evening.

The program opened with the singing of a number of carols. This was followed by an original skit of a family Christmas worship scene by the combined classes of Mrs. Abell and Mr. R.J. Milligan. The Primary Department was then called upon to sing together a group of three songs. Following this, Mrs. Abell's class of girls very sweetly sang four carols.

After the singing of more carols, Dr. Giffen's class of boys gave an interesting recitation on the stars of faith, hope, love, etc. The story of "The Night Before Christmas" was told by Don Milligan followed by a play "The Lights of Christmas" put on by the Explorers.

Between the main numbers of the evening, members of the primary department sang or gave amusing recitations.

At about nine o'clock the children were thrilled by the visit of Santa with his big sack and jolly laugh, who handed out presents and stockings filled with candy and nuts.

The singing of "Silent Night" brought a very enjoyable evening to a close.

Christmas Program By Gleichen School

At the community hall in Gleichen last Wednesday evening a large crowd gathered to listen to a Christmas program sponsored by the Gleichen school children. Much credit is due to teachers and children for the splendid performances rendered. When the program was over, gifts and candy were distributed to the children by Santa, causing much excitement and fun. A lunch was served in the dining room of the hall by members of the Legion Auxiliary. The rest of the evening was spent in dancing, with music by local musicians. All report a good time.

Week of Prayer To be Observed

The attention of members of all Protestant Churches throughout this area is drawn to the "Week of Prayer" which will be observed from January 2nd to 9th. With all clergy cooperating, services will be held on seven different occasions to allow for a full participation for all concerned. The schedule is as follows:

Monday, Jan. 3—3:00 p.m.: Evening Home, Gleichen.
8:00 p.m.: Gleichen United Church.
Tuesday, Jan. 4, 8:00 p.m.: Langdon Baptist Church.

Miss Bernice Christensen was chosen queen of the carnival at Carseland a week ago, when the Curling club held their second grand show on ice to help pay for the new curling rink. Miss Christensen, who was sponsored by the Carseland Students Union, was crowned queen by Mr. Don McKinnon, in an impressive ceremony following the festivities of the carnival. Runners up in the queen contest, Theresa Foster, Lorraine Winters, and Phyllis Christensen, were ladies in waiting to the queen.

Entertainment was provided in the form of a broomball game, ice chuck wagon races, races and costume skaters. Coffee bars were run in the curling rink and in the basement of the hall, both by the ladies curling club, while the movie club held a crown and anchor booth and a bingo game in the basement, under direction of Mr. Leonard Kruse.

Following the carnival, a dance was held in the hall, with music provided by local musicians. Not including the booths, on which the profit was not available at time of writing, the carnival made a profit of $27.85, which will be a welcome addition towards the building costs.

Pioneer Families United in Quiet Wedding Ceremony

A quiet wedding of local interest was held in Central United Church in Calgary on Wednesday, Dec. 15 at 4 p.m., when the Rev. C.A. Lawson united in marriage, Gladys Hazel, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R.A. Coates of Brownvale, Alberta, and Archie Daniel, eldest son of Mrs. L. Frederick and the late W.F. Frederick of Nightingale.

The bride looked winsome in a brown gabardine dressmaker suit, with gold boue and matching accessories. Her corsage was of yellow Taisman roses. Her only ornament was a matching set of earrings and pendant, a gift of the groom.

Their only attendants were Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Farr of Nightingale. The bride's parents were formerly pioneer residents at Namaka, and the groom's parents have been well known in the Nightingale area since 1900.

After several days spent in Calgary, the happy couple will leave by car for points in the States and the West Coast, where their honeymoon will be spent.

THAT BOARD OF TRADE

Periodically someone says "We should have a Board of Trade", in fact a lot of people say it, to no avail. And somebody else says "We have one. It just never got started." And then nothing more happens and a good many opportunities which could be furthered by such a body go unheeded. So we are reprinting this editorial from the Colingwood Enterprise which includes one of the Orangeville Banner, all showing that other towns have the same problems, which some of them face and others ignore.

"After having an active Board of Trade for seven or eight years here, the absence of it recently often recalls its valuable public service. At times of public holidays or the Christmas shopping season, there is no community body to inform the public of store hours, etc., such as we have noticed in weeklies coming to our desk. In Dunnville throughout December and over the New Year holiday the complete schedule of store hours is given. Apparently in Orangeville a similar problem exists as the Banner comments editorially.

The other day a citizen called The Banner to express his regret that Orangeville was now without a Board of Trade. He voiced the conviction that such an organization could be of real service to this town in various ways. It could help among other things, he thought, in the matter of the power cut-offs by taking steps to impress our citizens with the importance of saving electricity in every way possible, for representations backed by the Board of Trade would carry more weight than if made by individual citizens. We agree with his opinion that Orangeville needs a Board of Trade. We think it a pity that the Board that had been operative for a number of years was allowed to cease to function. It did good work and was responsible for quickening the interest in civic matters. It was responsible too for the erection of the first ski tow in the Hockley Valley and attracting outside attention to the skiing possibilities of the Valley. The result of this spade work was evident last winter when several hundred city skiers visited the Valley every week-end when conditions were suitable for skiing. Orangeville has grown considerably in the last two years. This growth has brought the town new citizens and new problems. A Board of Trade could ponder these problems and make appropriate recommendations to the town council. Then there is the possibility of action that will result in attracting industrial enterprises to Orangeville, English and United States industries are starting many branch factories in Canada. Other towns are benefitting from this industrial expansion. Why should Orangeville not share in these benefits. What is worth having is worth going after. A Board of Trade is one organization that can work advantageously to attract industries. Apart from all this it is a good thing for business men to get together at stated intervals to discuss the affairs of their town and to plan for its improvement. Things don't just happen in a municipality. They have to be planned and worked for."

NEW FOUND PROVINCE

Last week history was made with the completion of the Canadian scene which came about with the addition of Newfoundland to the roster of provinces which makes up Canada. It is the tenth province but as Mr. Louis Blake Duff pointed out when he spoke to the C.W.A. convention last fall, it is the first province in point of years, the sixth in point of area and ninth in point of population. And he incorporated into his talk these other pertinent remarks which we quote now because it seems the time to know and ponder on the things which should go to make this union a success.

He said, among other things:

"It is of tremendous importance that we should fully understand the business circumstances of Newfoundland. Last year she bought $43,000,000 worth of goods from Canada, $26,000,000 from the United States and four from the United Kingdom. That is, 60% of all her purchases were made from us. Now let's see the exports. Newfoundland exported to the U.S. $24,000,000 of products, to Europe, $12,000,000, to the United Kingdom, $11,000,000 and to Canada, $9,000,000. That is, we buy only 18% of her exported goods. Now you see that for every $9 we bought from Newfoundland we sold her $43 worth. That is an unbalance that the new order will have to remove if everyone is to prosper. That is the balance that led many Newfoundlanders to vote against Confederation. . . I prophesy that if ever this marriage of 1948 ends in a bill of divorcement, it will be because of that vast discrepancy between what we buy and what we sell to our neighbor. . . Newfoundland is valuable to us because it is the closest point to Europe, our guard on the Atlantic. . . Geography determined that Newfoundland should witness the birth of the cable. That was in 1858. . . The first message of August 16 is worth quoting. It was from Queen Victoria to President Buchanan—"This cable will prove an additional link between these nations whose friendship is founded upon their common interest and reciprocal esteem." Now we have sixteen cables running from Trinity Bay. . . Who can estimate the value of Newfoundland as an air base in the Great War? Who can estimate its value today as a base in peace time? Nine scheduled air routes go out from Gander to the Old World. . . Newfoundland has lacked people and it has lacked capital. It is made up for the most part of coastal settlements, 1300 in all, few of which have any connection with the interior of the island or with each other. Great forests, great fisheries, great minerals, wait for the labour and skills of man, for enterprise and capital. Here is a tremendous opportunity for development and expansion."

This, in short, is a glimpse of Newfoundland, our new found province. May the years bring about a happy union to the great advantage of this comparatively new nation.

In Others' Words

FREEDOM

Professor John L. McDougall, of Queen's University, at the annual meeting of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce held recently in Vancouver, gave an address on the subject "The Denial of Freedom." The address was actually an attack on the federal Wheat Board act, which Professor McDougall said "arbitrarily limits the freedom of your fellow businessmen, the 270,000 farmers of the prairie provinces, because it was necessary to protect the liberties of others, but as a pure extension of centralized control." Professor McDougall said further, "Only those things which we are free to choose or reject have meaning and value to us. Without freedom there can be no choice. Without choice there is no value."

There is no more freedom-loving individual than the western farmer, but he is so hampered by restrictions and so often the victim of business monopoly and cartels that he is compelled to seek refuge somewhere. The professor brought some stark realities, the effects of which will be long lasting. When a free market offers you 15c a bushel for your wheat, 11c for your barley and 8c for your oats, you naturally look for something better. If poverty and bankruptcy is the price of free enterprise you lose your zest for that sort of thing.

The breakdown of free marketing during the depression years of the 1930's and during the war years showed the farmers of Western Canada that they could place little reliance for security on such a system. John L. McDougall said "Any system which will not tolerate a generous world (wheat) supply and has no facility to hold or release the supply except by improvidence and ruinously low prices in order to effect a balanced supply at a later time, is inimical to the welfare of such a country as Canada."

Professor McDougall is a great champion of freedom, but he is fully aware of the restrictions to freedom and free enterprise put into effect by classes other than farmers. Monopolies and cartels are more restrictive in their operations than anything else that can be devised. Take the case of the alkaline battery. Because three great manufacturing firms of lead batteries are in control in North America, the use of the pickle radiator battery has been prevented in Canada and the United States.

The optical goods business in Canada is tightly controlled by American firms, with the result that extortionate prices prevent many thousands of Canadian people from having the use of badly needed eyeglasses. There is the freedom there, professor?

At the start of World War 2 United States manufacturers in some instances could not supply Great Britain with material vitally needed for the conduct of the war. This was due to the tie-up between the United States firms and German firms. Freedom never perished because of that artificial business restriction.

The machinations of business men have done more harm to the cause of freedom than any action taken by democratic governments. Actually such governments have been forced into the field of business by the actions of businessmen. If the Queens University professor had been living on an Alberta farm during the depression years, he would not have been so critical of that system. Franklin Roosevelt wisely said, "It is the purpose of government to apply legislation to these fields where private enterprise has failed to accept proper responsibility for the social consequences of its acts."

—The Budget.

A SENATE APPOINTMENT

(Vegreville Observer)

No, I fooled you right from the start. I am not referring to an appointment to the Senate of Canada, but to the Senate of the University of Alberta. Among the recent appointments there is Mr. P.P. Galbraith, editor of the Red Deer Advocate and one of the best-known newspaper men in the weekly field. Mr. Galbraith has not only filled with distinction a multiplicity of public offices within his own community, but in the wider field of provincial affairs he has been steadily interested and given fine service. Mr. Galbraith should be a member of the Senate of the University, although I am bound to say that I have not the faintest idea of what a University Senator does. But I doubt that Senators are called upon to make weighty decisions from time to time, affecting the University. Phil Galbraith will do his job right.

Perhaps it is to be regretted that this senatorial appointment is not to the Senate of Canada. But Phil Galbraith is a bad boy, politically, and stands no chance of adorning the Red Chamber at Ottawa, although intellectually and, shall I say, artistically, he would be a good man there, along with those other newspaper men, Senator Buchanan of Lethbridge and Senator Rupert Davies of Brockville.

"FIGHTING JIMMIE"

(Brooks Bulletin)

Rt. Hon. J.G. Gardiner did not mince any words when he commented on the policy of the British government in planning to cut down imports of bacon and other farm products from Canada. Mr. Gardiner said the action was a scheme concocted by the British government "to fieldwork" who prefer to trade with Denmark and other European nations rather than Canada.

Mr. Gardiner may be said in a critical way about "Little Jimmie" Gardiner, most western Canadian farmer.

Cold weather always means heavier firing in homes and business places. This brings on an extra fire hazard.

Householders and business men will be well advised during the pre-holiday season to give an extra once over to their heating units, see that all pipes are cleaned and in good repair. Watch your firing closely. Check carefully all places where pipes enter chimneys or pass through partitions or floors.

These simple precautions may mean the difference between having a home and being out on the street or between running a business and being out of business.

It might also be well to check your fire insurance policies and see if that they are all in order and the premiums paid.

—Hinsdale Province.

THE FIRE HAZARD

Every daily paper in London had appropriate reference to the birth of a prince, all except one, the Daily Worker. Communist organ, Canada allowed the Dean of Canterbury admission into Canada to preach socialism, but that paper of which he is a director would not admit in to its columns the news that a man had been born into the world who may come day reign over what used to be universally known as the (if you will pardon the expression) British Empire.

THESE WESTERNERS KNOW TREE VALUE

It's men like Harry Gorrill and R. A. Howes who are setting the pace in tree planting on the Canadian Prairies. They know that shelter belts (there are 75,000 to 100,000 in Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba according to latest estimate) brake the wind, trap the snow, bind soil, conserve the water supply and make for comfortable living.

HARRY GORRILL who farms near New Dayton, south-western Alberta told Woodland World: "I came to this new country with the same idea as many others, to stay a short time and make what I could out of the rich land. But as time went on, I became conscious of the value of trees, and saw the possibilities of making a permanent home. And that's what I've done by settling my house in the midst of some 12,000 beautiful trees of different varieties."

R. A. HOWES' farm home just outside Melfort, Saskatchewan, enclosed by five acres of poplar, maple, and pine is considered a land-mark for miles around. Spruce transplanting has been one of Mr. Howe's favorite pastimes. A few years ago, he dug up 600 native White Spruce and trucked them 100 miles to his home; almost every tree grew. Forest specimens dug when they are two or three feet high and planted early in the spring prove best, he finds.

"These trees take lots of work,"

Enid Baldwin: "Pop, how do they catch crazy men?"
Keith Baldwin: "Oh, that's easy. A little rouge and lipstick, a hair-do and a pretty dress."

Little Cameron Milligan, aged eight, raised his hand. The teacher asked him what he wanted.

"Teacher," asked Cameron, "Suppose a man promised a girl a penthouse, a yacht, a limousine, and marriage? Can she sue him to breach of promise?"

"No," she replied, "breach of promise cases are now outlawed in this province."

John Abel, aged nine, sitting next to Cameron, leaned over. "There you are, pal," he said, "I told you that you had nothing to worry about."

Mandy was always complaining of being tired and never having an opportunity to rest.

One day her mistress said to her, "Mandy, you never seem to get rested in this world. When you get to Heaven you can sit down on the banks of the River of Life under the shade of the trees and rest forever."

Mandy replied "No, Missus, I never will git to rest even in Heaven. 'Bout time I gets to set down good and drinkin' that water, Peter will come round and tap me on the shoulder an' say, 'Get up from there, Mandy, it is your turn to go out hantin'."

Ever notice that few people go to a doctor when they get a cold, says Les Tiede? They all go to the movies.

Tony Weyers was told that he had a new baby brother, and began hopping up and down, shouting: "Where is he, daddy? Where is he?" His dad explained that he couldn't see him right away as the baby was in the hospital. Tony looked disgruntled and exclaimed: "Don't tell me he's sick already!"

Family ties are stronger at Christmas, Sid Coldwell informs us. Louder too.

Ted Roberts: "I always drink milk because the doctor says milk is a great muscle builder."

Doris Harwood: "I'm afraid your drinks are going to your head."

"Good Heavens, Jeannine," said Eva Gannon in astonishment to her young daughter. "Why are you reading that book of mine on Child Welfare? It will be a long time yet before you are old enough to get married. You don't need to read it till then."

"That's not the point," replied Jeannine. "I want to make sure that I'm being brought up right."

Don't Neglect The Forage Crops

J. E. Birdsall, Supervisor of Crop Improvement, Alberta Department of Agriculture, suggests that forage seed growers who are thinking of reducing their forage seed crop acreage or planning to discontinue seed growing, should not get out of forage crops entirely. He points out that good use can still be made of grasses and legumes for pasture and hay, and that these crops will prove both beneficial and profitable. They will maintain the fibre and fertility of the soil, and at the same time yield returns as livestock feed.

In recent years, many farmers with no previous experience in the production of small seeds, undertook clover seed production. Prices were high and even weedy land was used in an attempt to increase production as rapidly as possible. Other kinds of clover in the field or in the seed used, were not viewed with much alarm by growers. Buyers were able to pay attractive prices for crops produced, even though they were difficult to clean to a seed grade. Even mixtures sold fairly readily.

For some of these growers, returns this year proved disappointing particularly with respect to alaska clover. The price of alaska dropped. Buyers had to be a little more careful in their purchase of impure and mixed lots. Some growers could not sell their seed, and others had to take prices below the cost of production. Growers with clean stands however, still received prices that netted good returns on average yields.

Some growers will discontinue production of forage seed. Others will profit from experience and by sowing clean seed on clean land, will still find clover seed a satisfactory source of income. The point is, that grasses and legumes are far too valuable to be discontinued entirely. No Alberta farmer, says Mr. Birdsall, can afford to deprive himself of the benefits of forage crops for hay and pasture.

Soil Deficiency To Be Corrected

An interesting program of soil correction is reported from Australia. To the southeast of Adelaide and bordering the coast is an area known as The Coorong, or the "90-mile Desert". This region has been the object of considerable scientific research by government authorities in recent years, which has demonstrated that while the area has a dependable and adequate rainfall, it has been limited in productivity by deficiencies of zinc and copper. Investigation and experiment have shown that treatment with superphosphate containing zinc and copper will allow good permanent pastures to be established on soil once considered worthless.

It is reported that the Australian Mutual Provident Society proposes to acquire a large tract of land in this part of South Australia, where it will undertake a large-scale agricultural development program. This is the first effort of the kind made by an Australian life insurance company, and if successful, it will open up a large area of land for settlement, which was previously considered useless.

EVERYBODY'S BUSINESS

A young man and I were talking one day about a mutual friend who was noted for his unflinching cheerfulness.

"I envy him," said my young visitor, "because he's so happy and because his good nature makes him so popular. I could never be like that. Too many things get me down."

"You seem to think that all cheerful people are born that way," I replied. "But while there may be some 'born optimists', the rest of us can do a lot to boost our spirits if we try."

I then asked him how he acted when he was feeling really happy.

"Oh," he replied, "I whistle, kid people along, and I guess I smile more often."

"Then try doing all those things even when you don't feel like it," I suggested. "You'll be surprised how it helps make the sun shine. And start now!"

He smiled. I smiled back. His smile widened. "I begin to see what you mean," he said.

No man can feel perfectly happy if he has any worries about his family's financial security and his own retirement plans. Fortunately anyone can eliminate such worries through owning life insurance.

Nightingale Groups Hold Series of Annual Meetings

Nightingale Hall was filled to overflowing last Thursday when the children held their annual school concert. A splendid program was provided after which Santa came and distributed the gifts and treats. The children had a few games and the remainder of the night was spent dancing. Much credit is due the teacher Mrs. Grace Larson for another wonderful night for the children.

The Woman's Institute held their annual meeting at the hall Dec. 10. A dinner was provided at one o'clock and the business of the year followed immediately. All officers will carry on for another year. The new committees will be named in the January meeting. A Christmas card exchange was the roll call and new sunshine friends were chosen. Resolutions regarding the W.I. business were read and adopted. It was decided to carry on with showers for the newlywed couples in 1949. A very interesting letter of thanks from Mr. Giles of England was read. He had received a parcel from the W.I.

The annual meeting of the Hall Association was held Dec. 13. Mr. Wm. Joel was elected president and Mr. Frank Harriman secretary. Mr. Reg Gladden had been secretary for a great many years and resigned because he expects to leave the district in the Spring. Mr. Robert Newall, Norman Harriman and Roger Kinney are the new directors. Mrs. Joel, Mrs. Harley Harriman and Mr. Lee Kinney are the entertainment committee. Some discussion followed on the needs of the hall but no action was taken on account of high prices of labor and materials. A larger attendance at the annual meeting would be much appreciated by those left to carry on the Hall's business.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Joel of Calgary and Miss Kathleen Joel of Strathmore spent Christmas at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Joel.

Mr. and Mrs. Thor Larsen spent their Christmas with Mrs. Larsen's parents Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Way in Calgary.

This community expresses its sympathy to young Billie Atwell in the tragic death of his father. Billie makes his home with Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Burke.

The Christmas season is over once more. There was the usual get-together of the various families. Mr. and Mrs. Joel were guests at the Morgan home in Strathmore. Mr. and Mrs. Glover went to Brooks to spend the day with relatives. Mr. and Mrs. Howard Christoffersen and Mr. and Mrs. Pete McLean and family were guests of their mother Mrs. Grace Christoffersen in Calgary. Mrs. Herman Hanson and children of Calgary spent the holiday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Art Kinnett. Mrs. Harley Harriman was hostess for the Harriman family on Christmas day.

Our congratulations go to Mr. and Mrs. Archie Frederick whose marriage was a recent event. At present they are away on their honeymoon.

We wish everyone a Happy New Year.
